

Williston State College: Communication Instructor

Position

Immediate Community College opening for tenure track position for Instructor of Communication

Description

Williston State College is looking for an energetic, student-centered instructor who is willing to carry and develop Communication offerings for an emerging rural community college. Candidate will be asked to teach courses in Communication currently offered at WSC such as Fundamentals of Public Speaking, Interpersonal Communication, and Oral Interpretation.

WSC instructors must have the willingness and ability to work closely with students to meet their educational and career goals. Assisting with student organizations, advising students, and attending college activities are important functions for this position. Instructors are expected to participate on college committees, work collaboratively with other instructors, stay current in their area of study, and work towards making WSC the best community college in North Dakota.

Communication is under the Department of Arts and Human Sciences. Candidates with the ability to expand interest and offerings in the communication area are desired. Experience or ability to teach classes in other disciplines (i.e. English, Humanities, Social Sciences, etc.) is a plus.

Minimum Qualifications

Masters Degree in Communication (or a related field with 15 graduate credits in Communication) from an accredited institution

Salary

Depending on education and experience, the salary will start around $30,000.

Application Procedure

Submit letter of interest, transcripts of completed coursework, resume, faculty application for employment (available at www.wsc.nodak.edu/jobs or by request at the WSC Business Office at 701-774-4200) and contact information for three references. Send information to: Human Resources Coordinator, 1410 University Ave, Williston State College, Williston ND 58801.

Application Deadline

Review of applications will continue until position is filled. Employment is contingent upon a satisfactory background check.

Williston State College is an equal opportunity employer.
